Abstract: In the course of more than 100 years of struggle the Communist Party of China CPC has always maintained a high degree of awareness of danger in times of peace and has never stopped exploring and thinking about escaping the historical cycle

Zedong of the “people’s supervision” democratic new road to escape the historical cycle of rise and fall Xi Jinping gives the second answer of “self-reform” to exercise full and rigorous self-governance. Self-reform is an extension of the historical materialism theory that the CPC has led the Chinese people to create history. It is a remarkable symbol that distinguishes the CPC from other political parties and it has become a centralized embodiment of the Party’s management governance rejuvenation and strengthening. Self-reform and people’s supervision are of the same origin logical interrelation internal call and external response and harmonious integration. They jointly turn towards the happiness of the people and national rejuvenation together constitute the source of long-term peace and stability and synergistically demonstrate the Party’s distinct historical initiative and creative spirit. The Party’s self-reform in the new era should be carried out to the end in adhering to the unity of Party spirit and idea of serving the people the unity of centralized leadership and inner-Party democracy the unity of ideological armament and institutional guarantee and the unity of problem orientation and comprehensive deepening so as to ensure that the Party can escape the historical cycle and achieve long-term governance and always remain the backbone of the Chinese people and the Chinese nation.
